P&P ANNOUNCES REORGANIZATION/PROMOTIONS

Following a review and revision of the organization of the Prints and Photographs Division, the Library has announced the promotion of John B. Kuiper to Assistant Chief for Motion Pictures, effective June 24. He will continue to supervise the Motion Picture Section but, in addition, will participate directly in the planning and operation of all divisional activities and will serve as deputy to the Chief, Alan Fern, whenever required. Mr. Kuiper, film director, lecturer, and scholar, joined the staff of the Library of Congress in 1965 as Head of the Motion Picture Section. In this position he has been responsible for a broad acquisitions program, preserving motion pictures and related descriptive material, cataloging the collection, and providing bibliographic and reference services for films to libraries, scholars, and the motion picture industry. [An account of Mr. Kuiper's earlier career appeared in the July 6, 1965 LC Information Bulletin.]

The Motion Picture Section has now been organized into four units. Vivian D. Armstrong will continue as Laboratory Supervisor, and David L. Parker as Technical Officer. Newly appointed supervisors are Harriet W. Aveney, Processing Unit, and Patrick J. Sheehan, Reference Unit. Paul Spehr has been promoted to Motion Picture Specialist, has been assigned specific supervisory responsibilities over the section, and will serve as Acting Section Head in the absence of the Assistant Chief for Motion Pictures.

CORRECTION

The photograph of members of the Federal Women's Program Committee which appeared on p. 207 of the June 21 LC Information Bulletin was incorrectly captioned. Patricia Pasqual was identified as Harriet Saylor, who was not present for the photograph, and the name of member Cynthia Johanson was misspelled.

AMERICAN UNIVERSITY PAYS TRIBUTE TO SENATOR JORDAN

The Board and Trustees of The American University passed a memorial resolution to note with sorrow the death of Senator B. Everett Jordan, an Honorary Trustee of the University, at the April 27 annual spring meeting of its full membership. In the resolution, the Board attempted to "record its sadness at the loss it has sustained and [to] convey to Senator Jordan's family and those he represented . . . gratitude for his contributions to the growth and progress of The American University." The resolution was introduced by Secretary of the Board Anthony C. Morella, and the reading was followed by a traditional moment of silence. The memorial resolution will be

RETIREMENTS

William F. Major, Library Technician of the Hispanic Law Division of the Law Library, retired on June 28 after 26 years with the Library.

A native of St. Matthews, S.C., Mr. Major went to school in Washington, where he graduated from Dunbar High School. Before joining the Library staff, he managed a contract hauling business, was employed by the Washington Navy Yard, and later, was an employee of the District of Columbia government.

Mr. Major became a Messenger in the Stack and Reader Division of the Library in 1948. He subsequently served as a Deck Attendant and was temporarily assigned to the Processing Department as an Arranger-Messenger in Catalog Maintenance.

In 1955 he joined the Law Library Administrative Office staff as a Messenger-Marker and during his service there received an outstanding performance rating. He transferred to the Hispanic Law Division in 1957 as a Deck Attendant. Since then Mr. Major's position has been reclassified twice, resulting in increased responsibilities.

Mr. Major's immediate plans for the future include fishing, boating, relaxation, and planning for eventual trips to the Pacific and Europe.

Mary M. Mylecraine, Head of the Music Services Unit, Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, retired on May 17.

She joined the Library of Congress staff in November 1965 following a brief period as a temporary researcher in Project Head Start, Office of Economic Opportunity. Her first position at DBPH was as Assistant Head of Music Services. Within three years she had been named music librarian and section head, the position she held at her retirement.

Soon known as a cheerful and untiring worker, she also gained a reputation as an excellent supervisor who inspired dedication in the staff and the volunteers who work with the music services program. Recognition of her contribution came in 1973 when she received an outstanding performance rating. Under her direction there has been steady growth in the music services provided directly by the division to blind and handicapped music students and musicians throughout the country. In a single year, the number of users rose by almost a 1,000.

She worked continuously with volunteers who produce large or bold-note music by hand, with the result that the number of music titles in this format doubled in a single year. Working with commercial music publishers to encourage the development of original methods for presenting music instruction, she succeeded in persuading two publishers to venture into large-print music production and to adopt other innovations. Under her editorship, The New Braille Musician, a bimonthly braille publication of the division, has gained a reputation as foremost among braille music periodicals.

An accomplished musician, she was harpist with the National Theater Orchestra in the District of Columbia in 1956 and 1957. Before that, she was for several years an instructor at the University of Texas Music School in Austin, where she taught harp, piano, and music theory. During that period, she performed as a concert harpist and also conducted a harp ensemble.

She won several scholarships to study music, first at the University of Michigan and later at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, graduating in 1949. She is a member of Sigma Alpha Iota music fraternity.

A native of Hilham, Tenn., she and her three children have made their home for the last several years in Arlington, Va.

AWARDS

James W. Elder, Senior Reference and Rare Book Librarian in the American-British Law Division, was presented a 30-year Federal Service Award pin on June 14 by Carleton W. Kenyon, Law Librarian.

Mr. Elder joined the Library of Congress staff in 1944. During his first year he held several positions of increasing responsibility in the Serial Division and in 1945 transferred to the Law Library as a Library Assistant. In 1948 he was promoted to the position of Acquisitions Assistant in the American-British Law Division; in 1952 to Reference and Processing Assistant; in 1962 to Reference Assistant; in 1968 to Legal Specialist; and in 1972 to Senior Reference and Rare Book Librarian.

Mr. Elder received an A.B. degree from Elon College, N.C., in 1942. He also earned a B.S. degree in library science and an M.A. degree in English from the University of North Carolina.

At a luncheon on June 17, Mr. Elder was honored by his co-workers in the Research Section of the American-British Law Division.

Eugene C. Powell, Jr., Assistant Director of Personnel, completed 30 years of Federal Service on June 27 and was presented a Federal Service Award pin by F. E. Croxton, Director, Administrative Department.

Mr. Powell received a B.A. degree from Emory University in 1943 with a major in Political Science. He spent the next two years in military service during the Italian Campaign of World War II.

In August 1946, Mr. Powell joined the staff of the Library as a Classification Investigator in the Personnel Office and later served as a Position Classifier until March 1951 when he accepted an appointment with the U.S. Department of Agriculture. He was reappointed to the Library staff in March 1952 and has since served in a series of positions in the Personnel Office.

Paul L. Horecky, Chief of the Library's Slavic and Central European Division, was presented a 25-year Federal Service Award pin on April 26 by Paul L. Berry, Director of the Reference Department.

Mr. Horecky served with the British armed forces during World War II, and from 1947 to 1949 was a trial attorney in the Office of the Chief of Counsel at the Nuremberg War Crimes Trials. In 1951 he joined the staff of the Library of Congress, serving first in the Descriptive Cataloging Division and in the then Slavic Division. In 1956 he was named East European Specialist of the Slavic and Central European Division, and in December 1958 was promoted to Assistant Chief and East European Specialist in the division. In April 1972, Mr. Horecky was appointed Chief of the division.

A longer account of Mr. Horecky's career appeared in the LC Information Bulletin, April 7, 1972, pp. 149-150.

Colleen S. Driver was presented a 20-year Federal Service Award pin by Paul E. Edlund, Chief of the Card Division, on June 12.

Mrs. Driver began her Federal career with the U.S. Department of the Treasury and joined the Library of Congress staff on December 22, 1958 as a Library Assistant. Mrs. Driver has held successively responsible positions in the Card Division and is currently assigned to the position of Card Processing Clerk.

PERSONNEL CHANGES

Margrit B. Krewson, former Assistant Head of the Loan Division Records Section, was promoted to be Head of the Section on June 17.

Mrs. Krewson, a graduate of the English Institute, Heidelberg, Germany, was initially appointed to the Library staff in 1967 as a Loan Reference Assistant in the Loan Division. She was a Senior Loan Reference Assistant at the time of her resignation in 1968 to accompany her husband, a military officer, to his new assignment in Germany. From 1968 to 1970, Mrs. Krewson was employed by the Library of Congress Field Office in Germany as a searcher, cataloger, and editor. From that office she transferred to the U.S. Air Force Library in Wiesbaden where she was in charge of processing, interlibrary loan, and the library catalogs and files. In this latter position she received a Sustained Superior Accomplishment Award.

Mrs. Krewson was reappointed to her former position in the Loan Reference Section upon her return to the Library of Congress in 1972. She was promoted to a position in the Records Section in March 1973 where she has served since that time.

Selected Information Resources on Nutrition (SL 74-4). April 1974. (9 p.) Compiled by the Science and Technology Division's National Referral Center, this publication is an informal listing of 27 organizations, all but one located in the United States, which will provide information on some aspects of nutrition. Each entry gives the name, address, and telephone number of the organization, and a brief description of the information services it provides. Copies of this list may be obtained free from the National Referral Center, Science and Technology Division, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C. 20540.

Supplement to LC Subject Headings. For a variety of reasons, the machine-readable record from which the January-December 1973 annual supplement to LC Subject Headings will be produced became ready for processing for publication at approximately the same time as the record for the January-September 1973 third quarterly supplement. In order to avoid any further delay in making 1973 headings available to libraries, issuance of the 1973 third quarterly has been canceled in favor of publication of the annual. Elimination of the quarterly not only will make the complete list of 1973 headings available more promptly but also will save paper and spare libraries the inconvenience of reviewing much of the same material twice within a relatively short period of time.

NEW REFERENCE WORKS

When five German librarians toured the United States and Canada in May and June of 1972, it was to observe what progress American library automation had made since the last official visit by German librarians in 1967. The Library of Congress was one stop on the tour. Now, almost two years later, the Library has received a book reporting on their visit entitled Bibliotheksautomatisierung in den USA und in Kanada (Pullach, Verlag Dokumentation. 1973. 28 DM.), edited by Walter Lingenberg, in which almost every aspect of library automation from on-line shared cataloging to computer hardware is discussed. The German librarians toured university and State library systems such as the University of Chicago Library and the Ohio College Library Center; specialized libraries such as the IBM Advanced Systems Development Division in Los Gatos, Calif; and also took a great interest in SDI systems like the New York Times Information Bank, the Chemical Abstracts Service, and the Library's bill status service in the Congressional Research Service. The book has detailed chapters on cataloging, SDI, and other information systems, order automation, and automated loan services.

Washington and the Library of Congress were first on the itinerary of the foreign librarians. Here they visited the MARC offices and ISO, and viewed the "computer park" at the Computer Services Center and the Card Division. The visiting librarians were able to see the beginnings of LC's Order Division automation and of such alphabet soup automation projects as PIF and MUMS. They were surprised at the number of EDP specialists and the technical know-how advancements which had taken place here. Twenty-five pages of the 144-page report are devoted to the MARC format and its uses and to the development of the MARC Distribution Service. The librarians concluded that the Library of Congress must be considered to be the national center for library automation.

At the IBM library at Los Gatos they observed the on-line library management system which includes order, access, cataloging, and loan operations. At the University of California at Los Angeles they were shown the on-line Serial Control System of the Biomedical Library. A system mentioned in great detail was the on-line shared cataloging of the Ohio College Library Center (OCLC). The library they considered to be the most automated of all American libraries was Northwestern University Library at Evanston, Illinois, with its on-line master file of holdings to which both the order operations and the print train for catalog cards were connected. They were dazzled by the automated loan operations which enabled 70 percent of the users to charge out their own books with the aid of an IBM printer which utilized only the call number of the book and the social security number of the user.

In summing up, the German librarians concluded that the American and Canadian libraries had made great progress (and thereby widened the European-American automation gap) since the end of the 60's in both soft and hardware automation. This was noted especially in the field of on-line processing which, when combined with videotype terminals, eased the input and corrections process. The fact that permanent "dedicated computers" installed exclusively for library use were so common (OCLC, University of Toronto Library, and LC) was considered an additional reason for the great progress. The visitors concluded that more work still had to be done to achieve a totally integrated library automation system which fuses all the functions of a library.

Library Lit. 4–The Best of 1973 (Metuchen, N.J., Scarecrow Press, 1974. 383 p. Z671.L7024), was edited by Bill Katz and Sherry Gaherty, and is the fourth volume of an annual anthology of writing in the field of librarianship. Thirty articles were chosen by editors and jurors after examination of 200 magazines. All articles were published between November 1972 and November 1973 and are grouped under four headings: Communication and Education, Libraries and Librarians, the Social Prerogative, and Technical Services/Reader Services. Library Lit. is in the general collections of the Library.

The Dag Hammarskjold Library of the United Nations has prepared a bibliography on apartheid in South Africa covering publications issued in the period 1970-1973. Entitled Selective Bibliography on Apartheid, it appears as number 10/74 in the May 1974 issue of Notes and Documents, prepared by the Unit on Apartheid, Department of Political and Security Council Affairs, United Nations.

This edition supplements a 1970 study, Apartheid: A Selective Bibliography on the Racial Policies of the Government of the Republic of South Africa (ST/LIB/22/Rev. 1), and includes a few items published prior to 1970 that were acquired by the UN Library after the compilation of the main bibliography. Its 186 entries include both books and periodical articles and are divided into several sections covering such topics as the economic, educational, and legal aspects of racial policies.

A copy is available for consultation in the African Section, General Reference and Bibliography Division. [Julian W. Witherell]

NEWS IN THE LIBRARY WORLD

Naval History Meeting Held at NARS

On May 30 and 31, a conference on naval history was held at the National Archives and Records Service. The conference addressed itself to records and documents available in the National Archives relating to the peace and wartime operations of the U.S. Navy and the naval forces of other nations. This was the 14th in a series of conferences conducted by the National Archives on subjects of mutual interest to archivists and historians. Participants included representatives from universities, the U.S. and foreign navies, Government agencies, and archival repositories. Chairman of the conference was Richard A. von Doenhoff of the National Archives staff. Attending from the Library of Congress was Paul T. Heffron, Specialist in 20th-Century Political History, Manuscript Division.

Subjects explored in formal papers and general discussion reflected the wide dimensions of naval history, ranging from the role of the Navy in the Mexican War to the international law aspects of the Cuban blockade. Also prominently featured were the effect of science and technology on the development of the Navy and an appraisal of the strategy and tactics of Admiral Nimitz in the celebrated World War II naval battle at Midway Island. An added attraction at the conference was a graphic description, by John G. Newton of the Duke University Marine Laboratory and Gordon P. Watts of the North Carolina State Archives, of the locating of the Monitor.

GRANTS

The Council on Library Resources has launched its new Academic Library Management Intern Program with the selection of five mid-career librarians of exceptional management potential to work closely this coming academic year with the directors of five important university research libraries. Barbara Brown, Head of Reference and Public Services, Washington and Lee University, will work with Page Ackerman at the University of California in Los Angeles. Ralph Edwards, Assistant Director of the School of Librarianship, Western Michigan University, will intern with Frederick Wagman, University of Michigan. Judy Fair, Director of the Urban Institute Library, will serve her internship with William Dix, Princeton University. Thomas Michalak, Librarian for Economics and Political Science, is assigned to Warren J. Haas, Columbia University. Barbara von Wahlde, Associate Director of Technical Processing, University of West Florida, will work with Richard Boss of the University of Tennessee.

The University of Michigan School of Library Science has received a grant award from the U.S. Office of Education for nine master's degree fellowships in library science for students from minority groups. The fellowships are for the academic year 1974-75; information and applications are available from Russell E. Bidlack, Dean, School of Library Science, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich. 48104.
